

NEW 2016 FORD EDGE SEL

The Weekly Publication of The County Journal, Inc.

From the Other

AUGUST 25, 2016

Side of the Desk Tennessee Senator Bob Corker came to town this week.

Many of the leaders of Hardeman County were there to hear what he had to say. I enjoyed seeing everyone and they all dressed nice (well, almost everyone) and were on their best behavior.

It's not often that one of the probably 150 most powerful people in the United States comes to Hardeman County.

And with all due respect to the Senator, who cares.

Now, don't get me wrong. I think he's a good man and stands for many of the things I believe in also. But his effect on our lives here in Hardeman County are greatly less than the people I hung out with prior to his speech. Our county leaders pack much more punch than Mr. Corker (unless he reads this column and decides to get even, I suppose) for me.

It is said all politics are local. Well, I hope so. The local guys are the only ones I know.

In a few months, we'll go to the polls and elect a president. Except that unless you have a pretty good imagination, it's hard to believe we have anything to do with it. It's too big, too far away. I vote in the presidential race because it's my civic duty and I like the people at the election commission, not because I think my vote will matter in Washington.

And frankly, if I thought that the Presidential Election in November would really effect my life...with the current collection of clowns and perjurers...I'd buy chickens, stockpile weapons, ammunition, beef jerky, and chargers for my smartphone, and get off the grid.

National Elections to me are like a ballgame. Fun to see who wins, but not really making much difference in my life. And fun to watch the lunacy of those blindly rooting for their "team."

Don't get me wrong, I'm voting. But, I'm voting for Gordie. Darrell Teubner, Editor

Voters in six cities in Hardeman County will have a chance to vote for their leaders or on issues, while they join the remainder of the county in voting for state and national candidates in the November election.

With the deadline for petitions passing on August 18, the Hardeman County Election Commission can now prepare for early voting on October 19 that will continue through November 3, with Election Day scheduled for November 8

Two cities will have a mayor to decide upon and one will have to look beyond the candidates who turned in petitions for their lead-

In Middleton, Mayor Jackie Cox will face opposition with John Henderson running as well. Middleton's Board of Aldermen will be filled by the six candidates for the six slots.

Silerton is the only municipality that is assured of new leadership at the top as longtime Mayor Bill Mayfield has chosen not to run. Two are vying for the position as Willard Beshires and Michael Vales are running. The five person board of aldermen will be filled by the five candidates running.

In Toone, Mayor Joe Jones is running unopposed, as are the six aldermen who will be on the ballot.

Saulsbury's Jim Daniel is the only candidate for mayor and the five running for aldermen will fill the five available slots.

Hornsby's Mack Carter is the only one running for mayor, but with only five running for aldermen and seven spots needed to govern, write-in candidates (or if none are elected as write-ins) or appointees will be necessary to fulfull the town charter's require-The deadline to register as a certified write-in candidate is noon on September 19 at the Hardeman County Election Commission office located at 106 S. Porter Street

Voters in Bolivar will have a local reason to go to the polls as well, with a referendum on wine in grocery stores (WIGS) on the ballot.

ONE DOLLAR

If passed, the WIGS referendum would allow grocery stores in Bolivar to sell wine. Bolivar is the only municipality in Hardeman County large enough to qualify to have a referendum on the issue, according to Hardeman County Administrator of Elections Amber Moore. A petition with 120 Bolivar residents' names was submitted that paved the way for the referendum.

In 2014, the WIGS passed in 78 cities and counties across the State of Tennessee. Sales in those areas began in July of this year.

Also on the ballot for Middleton and Toone are questions on urban growth or annexation of property to expand the city limits for each city.

Asking for Help from the Church

With Tennessee being almost in the middle of the Bible Belt, where church attendance is higher than the national average, it's no surprise that there are 3.5 million people of faith living, working and worshiping in our state. On August 22, over 20 people of faith attended a meeting in hopes of incorporating addiction recovery within our congregations and in our community at the former Boys and Girls Club at 208 Hope Street in Bolivar.

The State of Tennessee Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services wants to help by providing leadership and training for communities in West Tennessee and can help raise awareness and give resources and support to those who wish to become a Certified Recovery Church or Faith Based Organization.

Monty Burks, Director of Faith Based Initiatives, Substance Abuse Services for the State of Tennessee Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services explained that demographics show our community to be ideal for a faith based community initiative, with a ratio of 7.1 people of faith for each recovery candidate. The next step for this process is to plan a community event to put this initiative into motion.

For more information email recoverybeginshere@gmail.com or call Steve Robinson at 731-609-7234. Also, visit http://Tennessee.gov/behavioral-health/article/become-a-certified-faith-based-community.

Viva Downtown Bolivar for Music on the Square The Bolivar Downtown Amphitheatre will welcome old friends back on August 26 as the Stunning Cunning Band will bring their unique brand of music and showmanship at 8:00 p.m.

The Stunning Cunning Band play a mix of Rock-abilly, Classic Rock, R&B, and traditional Country and Blues.

The band is fronted by Brandon Cunning on lead vocals and guitar. Joining Cunning are Steve Clark on stand up bass; Rick McFarland on drums; and Brian Stuhr on guitar.

The combo has played in over 40 night spots in the Memphis area including Blues City Cafe, Hard Rock

Cafe, the Fed Ex Forum and played at the Selmer Rock-A-Billy Festival in 2015. Opening the night is another Hardeman County favorite as Brian Lee Howell brings Elvis to the downtown amphitheatre beginning at 7:00 p.m. Howell has been a full-time Elvis performer for ten years and has appeared in almost 800 cities, on cruise ships and in foreign countries. Howell employs costume changes to accentuate

Music on the Square in Bolivar is due to the efforts of the Hardeman County Music Com-

Investors Can Learn Much from Workers Next week, we observe Labor Day, a celebration of the American worker. And there's a lot to celebrate, because our workers have accomplished great things and, in the process, demonstrated a variety of impressive character traits - many of which also can be useful to in-

For example: Perseverance – Have you ever read about an inventor who failed dozens of times before finally hitting on a winner? Or a scientist who studied the same problem for decades before discovering a revolutionary solution? All kinds of workers display this type of perseverance, in one form or another. As an investor, you, too, will need this "stick-to-itiveness" because you will face challenges. Markets will drop, individual investments may disappoint, tax laws may change, and so on. But if you're patient, and you follow a long-term strategy that's based on your needs, risk tolerance and time horizon, you can overcome those obstacles that may be blocking progress toward your goals.

Inquisitiveness – During your own work, you've probably found that you can improve your effectiveness simply by asking a few questions or otherwise learning a little more about your tasks at hand. As an investor, you'll also find that knowledge is power – because the more you know about investing and investments, the better prepared you can be when making decisions. Sometimes, this knowledge can help you look past the so-called experts who are touting the "next hot stock." Other times, your curiosity may lead you to find new opportunities. In any case, learn as much as you can, and if you work with a financial professional, ask questions – as many as necessary. The investment world is fascinating, and it can be complex – but it is also understandable to those who make the effort.

Flexibility - When something isn't working, you may need to try another approach. Successful workers know this - and so do successful investors. Suppose, for example, you have been trying to boost your overall return by buying and selling investments. After a while, you may realize that such behavior is costly - in more ways than one. You will likely rack up fees and commissions, you may incur the highest rate of capital gains taxes (assessed on investments held less than one year), and you will be disrupting any cohesive investment strategy you've established. Upon recognizing these problems, you could decide to "switch gears" and follow a long-term, "buy-and-hold" strategy. That's flexibility – and that's a great attribute for investors.

Vision – Good workers have a clear picture of what they want to accomplish – and they know what they must do reach their goal. As an investor, you also need to establish a vision of where you want to go and how you can get there. So when contemplating your retirement, try to foresee the lifestyle you hope to lead – will you travel the world or stay close to home, pursuing your hobbies? Then, use this vision to help guide your actions, such as increasing your contributions to your 401(k) or IRA, or changing the investment mix within these accounts.

Transferring what you learn from the working world to the investment arena can help make investing a less laborious – and potentially more enjoyable – process. So put that knowledge to good use.

Horse-powered Logging, Not Just Something for the 1800s

After traveling down a field road in a soybean field that never seems to end, evidence of something, anything, going on finally emerges. Trucks, logs, and horse trailers seemingly sit in the middle of nowhere by the woods and there is silence except for the hum of insects. Finally, a faint clink of a harness and rattle of a wagon emanates from the woods and a team of draft horses named Spud and Tater emerge from an imperceptible trail in the lofty trees towing a load of logs behind them. Circling the lot, Jeff Ferge of Somerville dismounts and unloads the logs from the wagon by hand. Loggers who use horses are a dying breed and Jeff Ferge is one of a very few left in the area.

Jeff Ferge is the owner of a small, quiet logging operation with roots going back generations all the way to Ferge's great-grandfather. Ferge himself became a part of the family tradition in 1982 when he bought his first team of horses and began logging part time. Ten years later, he started logging with his horses full time. In 2002, he went out on his own and has not looked back since. If you have ever visited the Ames

BULLETIN

Plantation Heritage Festival in Grand Junction or the Milan Fall Folklore Jamboree, you might have spotted him or his crew and the backbone and stars of the business, the horses.

The draft horses are the key to the whole operation. Disciplined and hard-working, they work in pairs hauling loads of logs without a complaint while obeying subtle commands. As the logs are loaded onto their wagon in the middle of the woods by a Bobcat, they are still. Ferge's love for his horses shines as he stands in front of Spud and Tater, talking to them as timber is being piled behind them. Spud and Tater are Belgians, a breed of horses bred for and used for work. Another breed Ferge likes to use are French draft horses called Percherons. Percherons are his favorite because they "have really good feet and flies bother them less than Belgians."

Training begins for the powerful animals at two to three years old. The horses are put to work at the age of four. Spud and Tater are four, which is still young for a horse. Already towering, they still are not done growing. More next

Community Health Center Hosts Women's Health Event

by Anna Alicia Sails

The Hardeman County Community Health Center held an event celebrating women's health and prenatal services on August 18. At the event, women and their families got a chance to educate themselves and look at the different booths relating to all aspects of health and were also able to enjoy some light refreshments. There were booths about physical health and even behavioral health that showed definitions, symptoms, and treatment.

There was a booth with representatives from Youth Can, an organization for those who are 16-24-years-old and dropped out of school. With Youth Can, they can go back to high school or college, receive their degree, and gain employment. It also helps those who are pregnant or parenting and underemployed. Along with booths, there was an area for the Hardeman County Health Department where the representatives who wanted women to take away a few tidbits of advice.

Patrena Minter, Hardeman County Health Department Public Health Representative said, "We want to give the women information that they can take home and not keep it to themselves, but share it with their families also."

Minter also stressed the importance for women to take care of good wives and mothers that we forget to take care of ourselves and women need to do what they need to do to keep themselves healthy in order to keep others healthy."

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE Foreign-Trade Zonell Board (B-53-2016)

Foreign-Trade Zone 283 -West Tennessee Area Application for Reorganization

(Expansion of Service Area) under Alternative Site Framework

An application has been submitted to the Foreign-Trade Zones (FTZ) Board by the Northwest Tennessee Regional Port Authority, grantee of Foreign-Trade Zone 283, requesting authority to reorganize the zone to expand its service area under the alternative site framework (ASF) adopted by the FTZ Board (15 CFR Sec. 400,2(c)). The ASF is an option for grantees for the establishment or reorganization of zones and can permit significantly greater flexibility in the designation of new subzones or "usage-driven" FTZ sites for operators/users located within a grantee's "service area" in the context of the FTZ Board's standard 2,000-acre activation limit for a zone. The application was submitted pursuant to the Foreign-Trade Zones Act; as amended (19 U.S.C, 8la-8lu), and the regulations of the FTZ Board (15 CFR patt 400). It was formally docketed on August 11, 2016.

FTZ 283 was approved by the FTZ Board on October 11, 2012 (Board Order 1851, 77 FR 64463"64464, October 22,2012) under the alternative site framework. The zone currently has a service area that includes the Counties of Dyer, Gibson, Haywood, Lake, Lauderdale, Madison, Obion and Tipton. The applicant is now requesting authority to expand the service area of the zone to include the Counties of Fayette, Hardeman and McNairy, as described in the application. If approved, the grantee would be able to serve sites throughout the expanded service area based on companies' needs for FTZ designation. The application indicates that the proposed expanded service area is adjacent to the Memphis Customs and Border Protection

In accordance with the FTZ Board's regulations, Kathleen Boyce of the FTZ Staff is designated examiner to evaluate and analyze the facts and information presented in the application and case record and to report findings and recommendations to the FTZ Board.

Public comment is invited from interested parties. Submissions shall be addressed to the FTZ Board's Executive Secretary at the address below. The closing period for their receipt is [INSERT DATE 60 DAYS AFTER DATE OF PUBLICATION IN THE FEDERAL REGISTER]. Rebuttal comments in response to material submitted during the foregoing period maybe submitted during the subsequent 15-day period to [INSERT DATE 75 DAYS AFTER DATE OF PUBLICATION IN THE FEDERAL REGISTER].

A copy of the application will be available for public inspection at the Office of the Executive Secretary, Foreign-Trade Zones Board, Room 21013, U.S. Department of Commerce, 1401 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20230-0002, and in the "Reading Room!" section of the FTZ Board's website, which is accessible via www.trade.gov/ftz. OUR COUNTY

Hardeman County Remembered by Lisa Coleman

August 25, 2016 is the 100th anniversary of our National Park Service. Today over 400 areas in every state, the District of Columbia, American Samoa, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands are under the supervision of the National Park Service, covering more than 84 million acres and include national parks, monuments, battlefields, military parks, lakeshores, scenic rivers, trails, and more. The largest park is Wrangell-St. Elias National Park and Preserve in Alaska at 13.2 million acres and the smallest is the Thaddeus Kosciuszko National Memorial in Pennsylvania at just .02 acres.

I have had the great privilege to visit many of our national parks all across the United States. I have visited places like the Grand Canyon National Park, Zion National Park, Yellowstone National Park, Rocky Mountain National Park, Great Smoky Mountains National Park, and too many other monuments, battlefields, and trails to mention. One of my favorites has to be the park we have in our own West Tennessee backyard -Shiloh National Military Park.

Shiloh and I go back a long time; this is my Mom and me in 1964 on my first visit to the park when I was about 18 months old. I have ancestors who fought and survived – the battle there in April of 1862, so it is practically in my DNA. I have been to Shiloh many, many times since then and, like all of our national parks, I always learn something new there, find some new part of it to

Because of the patient efforts of Mr. Herbert Wood and Mr. Rex Brotherton, Hardeman County can boast that we have a piece of the national park system here in our own county. Their efforts and hard work preserved not only the physical place for future generations, but also preserved the memories of those who fought there in October 1862. The Davis Bridge Battlefield site is part of the Shiloh Park system, and is considered by many national preservation organizations to be one of the most pristine battle sites in the country. What a wonderful legacy their work has left for all of us and for everyone who visits the area.

There are events planned at national parks not just this week but throughout the rest of 2016 to celebrate these magnificent spaces and places where we can, as environmental preservationist and philosopher John Muir so eloquently states, "Everybody needs beauty as well as bread, places to play in and pray in, where nature may heal and give strength to body and soul." If you have never watched the marvelous Ken Burns PBS documentary, The National Parks: America's Best Idea, I highly recommend it. Learn more about the park service at www.nps.gov or to learn more about Shiloh visit www.npg.gov/shil.

What a treat it is to have national park sites here at home; y'all, I think I'll get my camera, lace up my hiking boots, and visit Shiloh and Davis Bridge.

Tales from the Yellow House by Lee McAlpin

We had a lot of neighbors when we lived at the Yellow House. In fact the whole community were neighbors, a large majority of them seemed like family. We had a lot of black neighbors. At the time, we did not know what the word segregation and integration was, or meant. We all loved, shared and cared for each other, black and white. When there was sickness in families, black or white, black and white helped those families out. Seemed like we always lived close to Charlie and Mandy Holland even after we moved to several houses after leaving the Yellow House. Mandy did washing and ironing for several of the white families in Pocahontas. I remember I would stand amazed when I saw her coming down the road with a cotton basket full of clothes balanced atop her head. Charlie would get Mom to write letters ever so often to his sister who lived in Arkansas. In the fall one year Charlie asked Mom to write a letter for him. Mom asked him what he wanted to tell her and he said. "Sister be sure to come home for Christmas, we're gonna have goose and possum." Charlie and Mandy were always there to help out anyone in need. I have an old wooden door hanging in my den that was in the last house that Charlie and Mandy lived in at Pocahontas. Then there was Mag Patterson who lived by herself. She usually kept a fire burning in her fireplace during the summer. Mom and Dad would carry her food when we had left overs. Mom asked her why she kept a fire in the summertime. She said it would keep the snakes from coming in her house. One black man that I admired was Dick Winston. He was born with one of his legs twisted around the other one. It did not bother him from making a garden. He would lean on a crutch placed under one arm, and hoe the garden with his other arm.

I remember so well Hattie Poe and her daughter Louise who lived in a big white house down a drive from the main road, lined with tall cedar trees. The house looked like an old plantation house. Her two sons Dave and Paul went to Chicago and went to work. Us kids would be hoeing and picking cotton in a field next to Hattie's house and Dave and Paul would come in for a visit and they would give us kids nickels and dimes. Up the road from the Yellow House lived Rufus and Peggy, his wife. I cannot remember their last names. They were musicians and every week they would come to our house to play music. Some of the best blues I've ever heard. Rufus had a harmonica fastened to a coat hanger around his neck. He played the blues type guitar, and Peggy would sit in front of him and with two pencils, would keep a beat on the guitar body and strings while he played and sang. I remember going to a revival at the black church in Pocahontas when I was a young boy. I remember that there were small shelves along the walls of the church with coal oil lamps sitting on them, and a couple on each side of the pulpit. I can still hear the congregation singing a song called "Keep Your Lamps All Trimmed And Burning For You'll Soon Be Going Home." The harmony was beautiful to the point that it raised the hairs on the back of my neck.

Across the tracks and up on top of a hill lived Levi and Rozella Garner and a family whose last names were Bean. Some nights they would be singing on their front porch and we would be singing and picking on ours. We would stop and listen to them for awhile, and they would stop and listen to us. We played together, prayed together, loved, cared and shared with each other there in the little community of Pocahontas. It was sort of like one big family. A big majority of the families were poor, and it was instilled into all of us respect, care and love each other and life would be much easier for all of us.

The Editor's Inbox...Letters to the Editor

I want to say thank you to the people who maintain the school campuses in our community. Our church had a prayer walk for Hardeman County Schools a few Saturdays ago.

(For those who don't know that just means some folks from church get together and walk around our schools praying for God to give the school a safe and productive year)

Anyway, my wife and I were assigned the Bolivar Elementary School. We walked around the entire campus praying. We were both impressed by the school. First by how long a walk it is to walk around the entire thing. Don't believe it? Do it sometime. Don't forget to pray while you walk. But mostly, we were impressed by how nice everything looked. The grass, flowers, shrubs, playground...everything was really well kept. Even the parts no one sees. Somebody cares and it shows. Thank you.

Comeback on Opening Night

Bolivar Central found themselves down at halftime to Fayette Ware on opening night, but it was better than it might have been.

Late in the first half, with the Tigers already trailing 6-0, Fayette Ware scored on a 65-yard pass play. Well, almost.

An inadvertent whistle brought the play back and the Tigers held on the Wildcat drive to keep it at a one-touchdown game at the half.

"It's part of the game," said Head Coach Woodrow Lowe. "But even if they had scored, I'd like to think we would have come back anyway."

with a 30-point second half that gave them a 30-12 win on opening night.

Bolivar proved their coach right

Bolivar took the opening drive of the second half and scored, with the final 19 yards coming on a pass from Trey Lowe to Demarkus

278 yards on 14-27 passing with two touchdowns.

Bolivar then got their first lead of the game with 3:22 left in the third quarter as Jarion Lewis stripped Tebarius White of the football and ran 24 yards for the score.

"I told the team we needed to make plays," said Lowe. "That was a big time play right there."

Fayette Ware scored before the end of the third quarter to make it 14-12, but the Tigers scored twice in the fourth quarter, a Correy Brown 8 yard run and a Lowe to Cornelius Polk 16 yard pass, to salt it away.

On the night, Bolivar converted three of their four two-point extra point attempts.

Bolivar gained 367 yards on the night, but were slowed by 12 penalties for 125 yards.

Home by Jimmy Sadler

I've just returned from a short trip to Austin, Texas. We enjoyed the city and found the people to be kind and hospitable. It didn't take long for us to interact with homeless people, who, unlike many cities, wander to every corner. The few we met were polite. One of those people made me laugh and cry in the span of a few minutes.

The first man we met hobbled along the sidewalk. He didn't have a sign and wasn't trying to make eye contact. He seemed injured and when I called out to him, it was evident his injuries were severe. He spoke softly and seemed grateful at my meager donation. The man, with an eyebrow full of stitches, told me how he had been hit by a truck a few days earlier. The driver sped off without a bit of concern. It left him with a hobble from a smashed knee. He also had several staples in the back of his head from the hit and run. Ironically, this man seemed content. He seemed grateful in spite of his lot in life. It's that moment that helped balance my overly optimistic view of the city. It was a concentration of people, and that always goes both ways. More joy and more

A few blocks away, we encountered a man who asked if I could spare some change. The way he asked was so polite and gracious that I gave him money. He didn't lay on the guilt trip or give me some crazy story about needing gas to get the rest of the Sunrise: Perception by David Coy

I am close to finishing a class on the subject, Becoming Acquainted With Grief. In the study, we highlighted a group of people who were distressed at the death of their loved ones. They apparently had doubts about and distress toward separation from their loved ones. We call that separation anxiety. You probably have heard of people experiencing such when someone moves away and there is a possibility they will see one another no more. Our degree of difficulty toward change is different for all of us. This is especially true concerning traumatic loss. It affects us uniquely and individually because our life experiences are just that, individual and unique. You see we all look through lensway on his trip. He simply asked and was grateful for what little I gave him. A few more blocks and we saw a guy who would certainly be the best candidate of our day to be jaded from life. He lifted the lids on trash cans and dug around a bit. He pulled a few kernels of popcorn from a bag he found and popped them in his mouth. I handed him a dollar and gave him a bag of chips from my backpack.

This man was not only happy (his smile was one of the warmest I've seen), he worked for the dollar. He proceeded to tell us four jokes from a homeless person's perspective. His delivery was so genuine, we had to laugh. The last one hit me hard though. The punch line, finished off with that brighteyed optimism of a man with nothing, was meant to be funny. Instead, it got me choked up. "How is a homeless person like a baseball player?" I shrugged. "We are all just trying to make it home." He turned and began lifting lids again. I teared up thinking of that exchange as I drove. It was a great summary of the whole of mankind. Most of us are working for the weekend, trying to punch the clock, fighting through traffic or hoping the school day will end so we can get home. People work hard to get their first home, travel without sleep to make it back home or long to get the hospital stay over so they can be home. Most, given the choice, want to end their days at home. This dear man reminded me of how important that longing is in each of us and how much the es that are different from everyone else. The way we understand a situation depends upon how we process the information we receive. Our age, gender, mental and emotional development, our relation to whom or that which we lost, all influences our perception. Now hopefully we are able to 'walk a mile' in someone else's shoes because we have a better understanding of how they are different from us and we cannot and should not expect them to respond the same way we would under the same or similar circumstances. We are different and this is a good aspect to us all, yet it likewise demands that we be longsuffering and patient toward one another during trying or difficult times.

Some people believe love is a self-inflicted pain. If that is true even if only some of the time (like when it is lost), it remains also true, it is better to have loved and lost than never having loved. Loving means giving your heart to someone and thereby making an investment in their life with yours. Thus separation, when it comes, is always painful. Yes, there is pain along the way as the relationship with effort develops and grows, but there is joy also. Perception is the ability to see, hear or become aware of something through the senses as well as a way of interpreting, or understanding something based upon our mental impression. Now you see. Tennessee Leads Country in FAFSA Filings Tennessee Gov. Bill Haslam and Tennessee Higher Education Commission (THEC) Executive Director Mike Krause announced today that for a second year in a row, Tennessee leads the nation in Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) filings, an important indicator of a growing college-going culture in Tennes-

THEC, using data from the U.S. Department of Education, estimates that 70.3 percent of 2015-16 high school seniors in Tennessee filed a FAFSA. That rate is up slightly from one year ago, when the rate stood at 69.5 percent for the class of 2015, the first class eligible for Tennessee Promise. Tennessee was No. 1 in the U.S. in 2015 as well, comprising 40 percent of the nation's total growth in FAFSA comple-

"Through the Drive to 55, Tennessee has set ambitious goals for higher education. We have a long way to go, but these FAFSA numbers, combined with a 25 percent increase in first-time freshmen enrollment in community colleges and a 20 percent increase at TCATs, reflect a growing college-going culture in Tennessee," Haslam said. "More and more Tennessee students know that college isn't only an option for them, it's an expectation."

"Tennessee has found a FAFSA formula that works," Krause said. "Our financial aid programs require students to file the FAFSA to be eligible, but that's a small part of the success story. Schools, districts and communities are giving students the support and information they need to file the FAFSA, get aid and go to col-

According to THEC's calculations, New Jersey is the state with the second highest rate of FAF-SA submissions at 60.7 percent, followed by Delaware at 59.9 percent, Massachusetts at 59.6 percent and New York in fifth at 57.5 percent.

All Tennessee students applying for state-based funding for higher education, including the Tennessee Promise, HOPE Lottery Scholarship, and Tennessee Student Assistance Award, must complete the FAFSA.

Students will be able to file the FAFSA for the 2017-18 school year on October 1, 2016. The Tennessee Promise FAFSA deadline will be January 17, 2017, giving students a three-month window to file the financial aid application. For more information, visit http://www.tn.gov/col-

Whiteville Elementary Cafeteria Wins Award

While kicking off a new school year earlier this month, Whiteville Elementary School has another achievement to celebrate. WES has been recognized for having the cleanest cafeteria in Hardeman County. Janice Franklin Woods, the manager of the WES cafeteria, expressed excitement and pride for herself and the staff being recognized for this honor.

"I was surprised, but it was great," Woods said. Woods hopes to keep this going in the future.

"I definitely want to keep it up and I told everyone they did a great job and it's a job well done."

Ruby was a graduate of Bolivar Industrial School, Bolivar, Tennessee. She professed her life to Christ at an early age. She was a dedicated member of Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Jackson, Tennessee. She had a love for

On June 9, 1988 Ruby and John Watkins were married. At the time of her demise, they had been married for twenty-eight years.

Ruby had a love for always taking care of other people, making sure that people she knew and those she didn't know would have food to ear when they were visiting their loved ones in the hospital. God gave her a special gift for making sure that people were fed. She never met a stranger that she could not hold in conversation – she had the gift of gab for talking and always smiling with jokes. She will never be forgotten for the qualities that she shared with family and friends. Another one of her loves was traveling. She would never miss a family reunion. It could be thousands of miles away, but she would make sure that she was there. She was truly a woman who would not sit still; she was always on the go.

She leaves to cherish her memory: her husband, John Watkins of Jackson, TN; two sisters, Katherine Jestice (Allen) of Bolivar, TN and Mary Beard of Jackson, TN; a brother, J. W. Stanley of Jackson, TN; two brothers-inlaw, Allen Mitchell and Bert Watkins, Jackson, TN; a niece, Mary Bonds of Dallas, TX; two nephews, Ricky and Jimmie Stanley both of Jackson, TN; and a host of great nieces and nephews, other family and friends.

My Journey to Healthier Eating by Deborah Turner Brasfield

Everyone has a time of weakness when it comes to changing habits. You get busy, you do not take the time to plan and think the day through. The #1 goal is to get back on track as soon as you can: the next meal, the next day. Don't feel like a failure, just start "right" again. We also have times that we know we have been exercising and eating right and the scale has just stuck! You may even have gained a pound or two. Hang in there! Our bodies sometimes plateau, maybe you need to change the type of exercise you are doing? Set the alarm on your phone every 4 hours, this will go off and help you to think about what your plan is for the next meal or snack and taking time to exercise. Try changing your meals by adding a variety of other vegetables, lean meats and whole grains. Check your portions and drink more water.

I have been the same weight since the last article. People have mentioned that they can tell I have lost a few pounds - that is so nice and encouraging. I like to hear that! I also feel more energetic.

I have always gotten at least 7 hours of sleep every night, good sleep helps with your health and weight loss. Your body needs time to energize, good sleep time is very important. If you are not sleeping well, check some common easy things to "fix". Do you drink too much caffeine? Are you eating a big meal late at night? Do you keep on bright lights in bedroom area? Are you watching TV or a computer screen right up until bedtime? This applies to kids too. My husband has sleep apnea and has to use a "sleeping machine". (CPAP) This has improved his quality of sleep, plus it can help prevent some heart problems which can result from sleep

I have been on enough diets and exercise programs that I feel like I could write my own book. You have to find a program that works for you. Consult with your health care professional before starting any new plan, please. They should all have printed material on recommended healthy meal guidelines and info on sodium, carbohydrates etc. Maybe you want to download one of the free apps that will help you keep track of your food and exercise? Maybe for you it would be good to have a device to track your walking? Maybe you need to join a group online? Do you need to join a gym? What works for your schedule, your lifestyle? There are no more excuses, just figure it out for you.

Get regular checkups. Write questions down and expect them to be answered. Ask if there is any alternative to a medication, for me I can lose weight and hopefully avoid having to take any diabetes meds. I take a multivitamin, Vitamin B, Vitamin D, Omega 3, CQ10, and a Probiotic. I have had my doctor review these supplements and they have approved the right amounts for me. Sometimes the answer is a prescribed medication, but learn about that medication. Ask the doctor about side effects and consult with your pharmacist to make sure it works with other medications. Please be aware that vitamins and herbs can sometimes effect the other medications. Always ask your doctor or pharmacist before starting any new supplements, prescribed or not.
