From the Other Side of the Desk

This week only, the Bolivar Bulletin Times, Hardeman County's weekly newspaper, will be, in part, a foreign language newspaper.

Ici on parle francais? No. Se habla espanol? Nope. No, this week we tackle legalese, the language of lawyers, the way of speaking they teach at Harvard or Yale or Columbia. Or the Moon.

To see what I mean, try to read the quotations marked portions of the story "County Commission Gets Lake Report."

Oh sure, it all makes perfect sense if you went to (Insert Name) Law School or spent your time reading cases like Teubner vs. the United States.

(it was a little known case, where a guy fought to have a 13th month added to the year called "Teubnerary" and changed all the rest of the months to an equal 28 days or thereabouts. It was defeated 10-0 by the United States Supreme Court as one of the justices voted twice and no one called him or her on it)

Anyway, the report by the attorney about the lake project in Hardeman County was chock full of valuable information and a wonderful tool if you needed to fall asleep in the middle of the day before you read the second paragraph.

(kind of like this column...)
 It's a special language they use, convincing the rest of us that we have no idea what is going on.

And for me it worked. The story about the lake project mostly uses quotes from the paper the commission received because even after reading it 10 or so times, I couldn't tell what she was writing about.

And while I didn't question too many members of the commission about it, I'm guessing it will be a long time before they ask for another explanation.

Unless they have insomnia, that is.

Darrell Teubner, Editor

County Responds, Round 1

Hardeman County Sheriff's Department employees were given answers this past week to a lawsuit filed in 2019 against Hardeman County.

The suit, filed May 29, was filed against the Hardeman County Government, including the Hardeman County Sheriff's Department, the Hardeman County Commission, and Mayor Jimmy Sain, saying overtime pay was due employees Patrick D. Perry, Justin Bryant, Thomas Cody Naylor, Cheri Baker, Chris Wilkerson, Michael Hatch, and Ethan Vasquez for work performed for the Hardeman County Sheriff's Department.

The suit was filed by William C. Sessions of Heaton and Moore, P.C. of Memphis.

The answer, filed by W. Carl Spining and Michael T. Schmitt of Ortale Kelley Law Firm in Nashville, contends no county agency has reason to answer the suit, stating that the only defendant that can legally be sued is Sheriff John Doolen, as an individual.

"Defendants affirmatively assert that they are not Plaintiffs' "employer," as that term is defined under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), 29 U.S.C. § 203(d). Defendants affirmatively assert that John Doolen is Plaintiffs' employer and he is individually liable for any alleged violations of the FLSA. Doolen had the sole power to hire and fire, discipline, control work schedules, approve overtime for his employees, including Plaintiffs, and other issues concerning personnel decisions and had the power to instruct his employees on the proper procedures for submitting overtime and claiming compensatory time. Furthermore, Doolen actively instructed his employees to withhold information or not respond to requests for information from the county, which was necessary to confirm the amount of overtime/compensatory time being claimed. Therefore, Doolen is individually and solely liable for any alleged violations of the FLSA."

The document contends that since Sheriff Doolen as an individual is not named as a defendant in the suit, it should be dismissed.

Next week: The county answer to John Doolen vs. Jimmy Sain, filed July 16.

County Commission Gets Lake Report

The Hardeman County Commission heard an update and posed questions on the lake project proposed by Hardeman County Mayor Jimmy Sain as part of the agenda for their regularly scheduled meeting on August 20.

Providing the report was Laura W. Benz of Benz Environmental Consulting, LLC, who has been contracted by the county to investigate all concerns that would allow the county to construct a 3,500 acre recreational lake.

Ms. Benz, in the letter dated August 19, 2019, said of the meeting with the United States Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) on April 11:

"The purpose of the meeting was to introduce the USACE to the project, obtain initial thoughts on the scope of the analysis under the Clean Water Act, coordination with cooperating state and federal agencies, and determination of the process under the National Environmental Policy Act ("NEPA"): Environmental Assessment or Environmental Impact Statement. The meeting discussed dam sites, dam attributes, watershed volume, water storage of each alternative, the criteria to determine the fishing trips and quality of fishing resource, as well as whether the project site was located within an opportunity zone or proximate to major thoroughfare ways or other draws in Hardeman County. The analysis and decision matrix determined that the Pleasant Run alternative was deemed the preferred alternative as the least environmentally damaging practicable alternative capable of meeting the project purpose," the memo read.

The letter also said a site has been picked for the purpose of moving forward with

Hardeman Healthy Outreach Announces Public Programs

As Hardeman Healthy Outreach approaches the end of year one, University of Tennessee Extension invites local worksite and faith leaders to learn ideas for helping residents avoid chronic disease.

“These events are a step toward ‘moving the needle’ for better health,” said Amy Elizer, Ed.D., UT Extension Specialist. “People spend a great deal of time at work. While some people have active jobs, others sit at a desk most of the time. This everyday environment can impact a person’s health for the good or for the not so good. We know that employers are interested in holding down healthcare and insurance costs. We hope that best practices for healthy worksites, as well as ideas for low- and no-cost activities, will benefit employers in the county. These ideas can be useful locally even if the business has a health program. Making it local, makes it personal.”

“H2O also wants to meet with the clergy—whether they call themselves pastor, preacher or priest—to encourage them to get involved in the health of their congregations, Elizer continue. Pastor Undrae Johnson of Haywood County will be the keynote speaker and share his “caring for the temple” philosophy. As with the worksite summit, ideas healthy foods and physical activity will also be shared.

The workplace leaders’ summit will be Thursday, September 5, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at First United Methodist Church in Bolivar. The clergy summit will be Saturday, September 7, 9-11 a.m. at Lone Oaks Farm, 10000 Lake Hardeman Road.

The events are free but the registration deadline is September 2. To register or for more information, email Amy Elizer (aelizer@utk.edu) or call UT Extension at 731-658-2421.

This project is funded by the CDC’s High Obesity Program (HOP) and is working with The University of Tennessee Extension to improve access to food and physical activity opportunities throughout Hardeman County. For more information about planned activities, go to @H2OHardeman on Facebook or send an email to h2o@utk.edu.

Grace, Part 4 by Jeff Capshaw

The first two articles in this series centered upon grace and the individual. In last week's column, the focus was upon the less familiar topic of "common grace." That is a grace which is extended to all of God's creation and mediated to that creation (especially humans and their institutions) by God's general providence.

I cited Louis Berkhof's Systematic Theology and noted the practical results of common grace. Those include the restraining of evil in the world, maintaining a semblance of moral order, enabling various talents and gifts in mankind, providing for developments in the Arts and Sciences and so on. The past lessons then provide a summary for a basic understanding of grace. Moving forward, in this and the coming weeks' columns, I will selectively choose and comment on biblical texts related to grace.

There is no better place to begin than with the book of Romans. Before Romans 3, Paul mentions grace three times. In 1:5, he said that through Jesus, "we have received grace." In 1:7, he offers the familiar greeting to the Roman Church "grace to you." Then, in the last section of chapter 3, he discusses the familiar but controversial phrase "righteousness of God" (3:21-31).

A quick check of Google Scholar turns-up almost 200 hits on this passage just since 2015. A legion of monographs and scholarly articles have been published on this passage and its key phrase, "righteousness of God." This is especially true within the last couple of decades. All that to say that space limitations prohibit much more than a cursory glance at grace in this paragraph. What then does Paul say about grace here?

In chapters 1-3 of Romans, Paul asserts that both non-religious and religious people are all equally sinful. Since true, they all fall under the Law's condemnation. He writes, "now we know that whatever the law says it speaks to those who are under the law, so that every mouth may be stopped, and the whole world may be held accountable to God" (3:19). In verse 20, he goes on to argue that no human can be made right in God's eyes by keeping the Law. That never was the intent of it; the purpose of the Law is to bring about a "knowledge of sin" and not a remedy for it.

So, what do people sinful people need, those who are guilty and, consequently, stand in condemnation before God? They need to be put into right standing with God. They need a righteousness that is "apart from the Law." According to Paul, that righteousness comes from God himself "through faith in Jesus Christ for all who believe" (3:22). The biblical word for that righteous and right standing before God is "to be justified" (v. 24).

How then are sinners justified, declared righteous in the sight of God? According to Paul, it is "by his [God's] grace as a gift through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus" (3:24). There it is again: grace as a real, actionable, practical deed given to sinners by God.

Common Sorrow by David Coy

"Yes, if a man lives many years, let him rejoice in them all; but let him remember the days of darkness, for they shall be many"....Ecclesiastes 11:8. Days of difficulty and sorrow are common to all. There is no guarantee for a long life, let alone a life of ease. "But man is born to trouble, as the sparks fly upward," Job 5:7. "Man who is born of a woman, is short lived and full of turmoil, Job 14:1. But his flesh (body) shall have pain, and his soul within him shall mourn," Job 14:22. "For all his days are sorrows," Ecclesiastes 2:23. In the world you shall have tribulation, John 16:33. Yes, all that live godly shall suffer persecution," 2 Timothy 3:12.

When death has come and taken our loved ones, it leaves our home so lonely and drear; then do we wonder why it should be thus all the day long, why our loved one had to die, why their death hurts so much, why the pain of their loss seems, on some days, worse than the one previous. Toils of the road that is life seem as nothing when we are young, We think we will never die and heartache will never come. Yet, when it, comes we can endure if we stick together supporting each other as a group with the common experience, that is, the loss that brings sorrow. The blessing and the need with each of us to have support from others is crucial. This can be realized through family, friends, and even strangers by way of support group that gathers together to console and commiserate each other. Support is a powerful tool that is under utilized by the majority that are mourning. We come together for each other when natural disasters reek havoc in our lives and support with each other, we can and should when loss reek havoc also. ## The Editor's Inbox...Letters to the Editor

If you look around at the fields of Hardeman County you will notice change. Many corn fields are drying down. The ears will begin to turn down in the coming week or two, and the stalks turn brown. Soybean fields have finished the blooming period with many of them filling pods. Cotton fields are blooming in the top and filling the bolls farmers have worked hard to protect. Many are making what they hope to be a final spray on the field before they begin to defoliate the cotton crop. All of this signals that harvest is near.

This is the time of year farmers get to enjoy the results of the hard work they put in. Many will work countless hours harvesting the crop as fast as they can to beat the weather, contain crop quality, and meet the goal of completion by Thanksgiving. While they do all they can to meet those goals, they will encounter setbacks. Equipment will fail, the line at the grainery will be long, and weather will catch them.

The farmers of Hardeman County have many hours of harvest ahead of them. Please be considerate when you meet, or are behind them on roadways. They will let you by when it is safe for both parties. They are people like you, with a family waiting for them at home.

Extension Agent

Interested in Fixed Annuities? Beware of Common Misconceptions

Between your 401(k) or pension, your IRA and Social Security, you hope to have enough to enjoy a comfortable retirement lifestyle. Yet, you may want, or need, to find other financial resources – one of which might be a fixed annuity, which offers a guaranteed interest rate and can be structured to provide a lifetime income stream. But you may be nervous about investing in annuities because of some negative things you've heard about them. How concerned should you be?

To help answer that question, let's consider some common misconceptions about fixed annuities:

"I won't be able to touch any of my money if I need some of it before I retire." A fixed annuity is designed to provide you with income during your retirement years. But if you want to withdraw a significant amount of your money before you retire – when your annuity is in what's called the "accumulation phase" – you'll likely face a surrender charge, as well as a 10% federal tax penalty. Withdrawals may also be subject to a market value adjustment. However, to access a small percentage of your allocated funds, you might not encounter any fees. And some annuity contracts allow a 10 percent withdrawal with no penalty.

"Annuities cost too much." Many annuities are actually low in cost. Be sure to compare the cost against the value of each additional guarantee, feature, and benefit—and only pay for what you need.

"A deferred annuity isn't worth the wait." If you set up a deferred annuity, it's true that you won't immediately start receiving income. You will, however, be able to factor future expected payments into your retirement plan.

"When I die, the insurance company keeps my money." If your payout plan includes a beneficiary agreement, your beneficiaries will receive the remaining amount of money in the contract. Read the terms and conditions listed with an annuity, as they will spell out where the remaining money will go after you pass away.

Of course, even if the above concerns are simply misconceptions, it doesn't mean there are no issues about which you must be aware when considering fixed annuities. For one thing, the safety of your lifetime income stream and guarantees will depend on the claims-paying ability of the insurer that issued the annuity, so you'll want to choose a company that has demonstrated financial strength and stability. One other concern about fixed annuities: They typically don't carry a cost of living adjustment, such as that found in Social Security. You can find annuities that do offer some inflation protection, but this feature can reduce early payments significantly.

If it's appropriate for your situation, a fixed annuity can be a valuable addition to your retirement income. Before purchasing one, though, you'll need to weigh all the potential benefits and issues. But don't be swayed by misconceptions – you'll want to base your decision on facts, rather than fears.

Hello from Toone, where it is still HOT!! I always look forward to summer because there are so many fun things to do outside, but the older I get, the less I want to go outside when it's that hot. What's a guy supposed to do? I suppose I will just continue on with my routine of only going out to work in the intense heat for limited times.

Attention all Grandparents of TES students, mark your calendars for Grandparents' Week, September 9-13. More information regarding specific events will follow later.

Happy Birthday to our neighbor, Reggie Ellison, August 29. Reggie is one of the best car detailers in the area!

I'm sure by now you are all aware that Maxwell's Big Star has been sold to new owners, Food Giant. I dare say that most every one of us has shopped in that store at one time or another. Cousins, Jimmy and Doug Maxwell, took over the store from their fathers many years ago and operated it up until last month. Maxwell's was one of the oldest businesses in Bolivar and was a downtown landmark. Each time I entered the store I felt more like family than simply a customer. The employees were always friendly and very helpful, and Jimmy or Doug never failed to stop their work for a visit in the aisles. That personal touch and great customer service has been lost with many of the big corporate stores that we have today. Please join me in wishing Jimmy and Doug a very happy and well-deserved retirement, and we thank them for providing such a valuable service all of those years to Bolivar and the surrounding towns.

School is back in session, so be sure to observe the School Zone speed limits when children are present.

County Commission Gets Lake Report continued from A1

low coordination with the Tennessee State Historic Preservation Office and investigate aspects of the project that could affect cultural, archeological, and architectural factors under the National Register of Historic Places Act.

The letter detailed other concerns that are being addressed.

“To address anticipated comments from non-governmental organizations given the proximity of any alternative to the Hatchie River, we recommended that a downstream flow analysis incorporating the state prescribed minimum flow so as to protect downstream water quality and quantity and illustrate the pre and post construction conditions at various points downstream of the project and determine a negligible impact on the River. A proposal was provided to the County for its consideration on May 2, 2019 to determine the anticipated evapotranspiration rate and whether supplemental water will be required from another source to maintain the reservoir at full pool at times throughout the year. Another analysis will be required after the initial determination as to whether supplemental pumping is necessary, then assessing the downstream impacts of the project comparing pre- and post- construction, including determining where the impacts of the project are negligible,” it said.

And it pointed to, in the final contract, what will happen in the immediate future.

“With the meeting with the USACE we received confirmation that the time and research devoted to the development and refinement of the project purpose was well spent. Based upon the direction from USACE, proposals for completing the jurisdictional delineation to determine the exact quantity and quality of the jurisdictional waters for the permit application were provided to the County for its consideration on April 30, 2019. Upon completion of the delineation the USACE would schedule a pre-application meeting with all cooperating state and federal agencies onsite to further refine the required project specific studies. We preliminary discussed with the USACE having this onsite meeting this summer, however we are still waiting authorization and access for the jurisdictional delineation to be completed,” it finished.

After Sain read the report to the commission, commissioners made several comments and asked questions.

Justin Howell stated he was for the project, but that he failed to see a plan in place to do it.

“Help me with this one? This is the one economic project that could revive the county,” answered Sain. “I challenge anyone to come up with another one.”

Sain reminded the commission he isn't the only one that wants a lake.

“Bill Dance is in 100%,” he said. “And the State of Tennessee wants us to do it as bad as we want to do it.”

In response to a question regarding the spending of funds, Sain said he hoped money could be gotten from grants, but that, “The permitting process is lengthy and expensive but we have to do it to get a lake. We can't do anything without a permit.”

Commissioner Viscen Morrow asked if any landowners in the proposed lake area had been spoken to about doing studies on their land.

“We are contacting some now,” said Sain. “No one has turned us down yet.”

Elvis White asked about voting on the plan, stating he thought the commission had only approved hiring a lawyer to do the study.

“You'll get to vote on the site,” Sain reminded him. “But we have to get it approved first.”

Sain said that five different sites have been looked at, but the Pleasant Run option appears to be the one that might be the easiest to get approved.

“It has less environmental impact than the others, according to her (Benz),” said Sain.

Sain said that there were no cost estimates at this time and that it was hoped funding would be a combination of investors, county money, and state money that would pay for the project.

Benz, an environmental attorney based in Newnan, Georgia, is being paid for by a $150,000 grant from the State of Tennessee. Prior to the grant, the county had already spent approximately $15,000 of an approved $50,000 by the county commission when the state grant was eventually received.

Extending Summer Gardens by Carolyn Tomlin

Late summer is often a test of wits both for the gardener as well as for the plants. Long, hot days; too much or too little rain; an army of insects; plus disease and fungi that seem to appear overnight—all add up to late summer problems.

Experienced gardeners seem to take it all in stride. However, if you're a novice, perhaps these tips will help you extend your summer garden into one you will cherish for several more weeks.

Do your containers of annuals appear wilted during the day but seem to freshen up at night? If so, this usually is caused by too much heat. Water thoroughly, allowing the water to drain through containers two or three times.

Pot-bound plants may be another reason. Gently tap bottom of pot, lifting out the root ball. If roots have grown around and are tight, water drains out before soaking in. Clip some of the excess roots and place back in the pot with fresh soil. Water thoroughly and keep in a shaded location for several days.

Intense afternoon sun and extreme temperatures are another cause for plant fatigue. If possible, move plants to a location that receives morning sun. Filtered afternoon sun is another option.

Another method of combating wilt is using mulch. Organic mulch made from decomposed sawdust, grass clippings, weed chips of cotton seed hulls is excellent for maintaining moisture near plants.

Water thoroughly in the morning, so water doesn't evaporate quickly. Plants have several hours for leaves to dry. Evening watering may encourage mildew or other fungi. Roses should be watered near the soil level. Avoid getting water on rose leaves.

Deadheading, or removing all old blooms, is essential for new flowers. Without this simple procedure, the plant believes it is time to make seed. Thus, flowering ceases.

Clean the ground area near annuals, perennials, and roses. Remove dried leaves or foliage. Clip dead branches or stems. This helps control disease and fungi in the garden.

Avoid pulling stems of spent perennials. Instead, cut or break near ground level. This helps insure healthy plants for next spring.

If grass or weeds have invaded the plot, begin removing these unwelcome guests. These drain and take away nutrients from cherished plants. Roots come up easier after a rain.

Inspect all plants weekly for insects. This insures the pests will not invade a large area. Continue to fertilize annuals in late summer for blooms until frost. They have only one season, so push them to the limit.

Realize when it's time to say good-bye to some favorites. Instead of coaching them for another month, remove and replace them with fall mums or colorful pansies.

Remember, plants in a garden look nice for viewing. Plants in a hand look nice for giving. Brighten someone's day by sharing your flowers with a friend.

Adoptable Animal of the Week by Sara Vonderheide

Maddie (#19301) is a young adult, female terrier mixed breed. She is about two years old and only weighs 23 pounds. She is the perfect size for a lapdog and inside companion. This poor little girl was found on the side of the road and brought to the shelter by a Good Samaritan. She really needs to be in a home as she is not happy at the shelter. She loves to be held and loved by people. She tested lightly positive for heartworms, and she will need treatment. If you are interested in adopting Maddie, please contact us (preferably by text): Charla Cooper 731-234-4421 or Jennifer Smallwood 731-609-0408. You can also check out our Facebook page, Hardeman Adoptable Animals, Inc. You can also come to the shelter. We are located inside the county landfill (Walton Road), and volunteers are there between 9-1 each day.

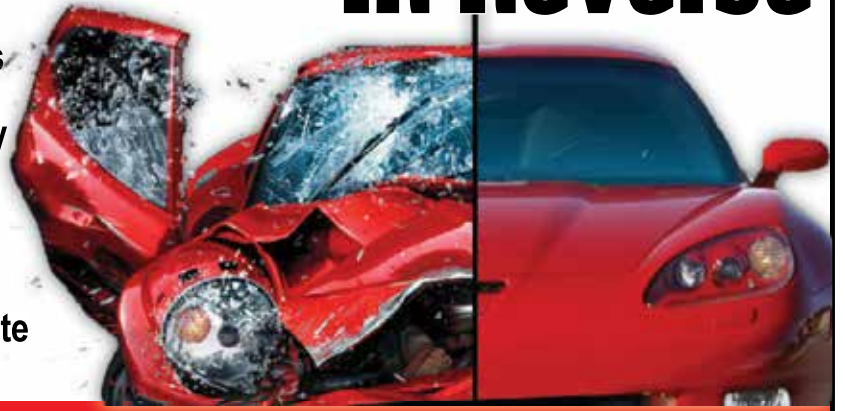

HAA, Inc. is a 501(c)3 not-for-profit organization. We are not affiliated with the Hardeman County Humane Society. Adoption fees are $125, and this includes all vaccines, spay/neuter, and care while at the shelter. If you are calling to report a loose dog, please call Animal Control at 731-658-2884. To call the shelter looking for a lost dog or to speak to a volunteer, please call 731-659-3040 and leave a message. Need to have your dog OR cat spayed or neutered? Need to have it done for free? Contact us to find out how you can do that!
