McCartney Claims He Was Misunderstood

A MADE UP STORY FROM SOME-WHERE IN ENGLAND -- Former Beatle Sir Paul McCartney says they really didn't mean it when they wrote the song "All You Need Is Love", but it was so catchy they decided to go with it.

"We knew you needed more than that," he offered. "But when we saw the piles of money that we could make from it, we decided to just go for it. It worked out."

Not that anyone is complaining. Released in July, it went gold by September that year and charted number one on more than 10 rankings and more than a half dozen countries. Only Belgium (#4) and Italy (#10) didn't have it go to the top of the charts in their country.

"Well, I guess the Italians need pasta and I have no idea what people from Belgium eat. Waffles, I guess," said Mick Larrying of Truth in Lyrics Magazine. "The rest is lyrical history."

Twenty years later, three of the remaining Beatles were asked if indeed, "All You Need is Love." Only George Harrison said yes.

The History of St. Valentine's Day

The ideas abound...here are a few... The Romans

Historians trace the origin of Valentine's Day to ancient Roman Empire. It is said that in the Rome of ancient times people observed a holiday on February 14th to honor Juno - the Queen of Roman Gods and Goddesses. The Romans also regarded Juno as the Goddess of Women and Marriage.

Defiance by Saint Valentine

The pairing of young boys and girls did set the mood of the Valentine's Day Festival as we know today. But it was actually due to the efforts and daring of a priest St Valentine that the festival got its name and clearer meaning. The story goes that during the reign of Emperor Claudius II Rome was involved in several bloody and

Also, a dollar will be added to the total for each year you have been married (to the one you wrote the letter to).

Deadline is February 12. Winner will be announced on WMOD Radio (96.7 FM) during County Journal Live February 14 and in the Bulletin Times February 14.

unpopular campaigns. Claudius found it tough to get soldiers and felt the reason was men did not join army because they did not wish to leave their wives and families. As a result Claudius cancelled all marriages and engagements in Rome. A romantic at heart priest of Rome Saint Valentine defied Claudius's unjustified order. Along with Saint Marius, St Valentine secretly married couples. When his defiance was discovered, Valentine was brutally beaten and put to death on February 14, about 270 AD. After his death Valentine was named a Saint.

According to another version of legend, Valentine was killed because he attempted to help Christians escape from the Roman prison as they were being tortured and beaten there. Yet another popular version of the legend states that while in prison Valentine or Valentinus fell in love with jailer's daughter who visited him during confinement. Before his death Valentine wrote a farewell letter to his sweetheart from the jail and signed 'From your Valentine'. The expression became quite popular amongst the love struck and is still very much in vogue.

By the Middle Ages, Valentine assumed the image of heroic and romantic figure amongst the masses in England and France. Around 498 AD, Pope Gelasius declared February 14 as St. Valentine's Day.

Beginning of Birds Mating Season

During the Middle Ages, people in England and France held a belief that birds started to look for their mate from February 14. This popular notion further helped to link Valentine's Day - celebrated in the middle of the February, with love and romance. Over the period of time, St Valentine became the patron saint of lovers and they began to celebrate Valentine's Day as a day of romance by exchanging love notes and simple gifts such as flowers. #### From the Other Side of the Desk

Got an e-mail the other day from the Tennessee Department of Transportation informing me that "Memfix" will have some more road closings this weekend.

Wait, "Memfix?"

Yes, it seems the TDOT has decided instead of calling it "Road Closing to Make Your Life Miserable this Weekend" that are going to be cute and call it "Memfix."

It's why I like living in Hardeman County, where more than two cars at the stop sign is about as bad as it gets.

But as far as "Memfix" goes, I guess "Trafficgeddon" was taken or maybe not what they were searching for in a name to soften the annoyance and suffering.

"Memfix" reminds me of all the other slogans/phrases used to remind me that things are really going to be okay. Or not. Here are a couple:

We just need to be friends: We've all heard this one. It's a half-truth at best. This has "go away" written all over it. I mean, if you have to discuss being "friends" it sounds like you aren't going to be friends, unless you are on Dr. Phil or something.

Just a little pinch: This is used by doctors and dentists. It means you are going to be in a lot of pain and if you think it was more than just a pinch, well, maybe we should just be friends.

It's all fun and games until the apocalypse. Which he does. And along the way, Emmet and his band of pals meet everyone from aliens to dinosaurs to Queen Watevra Wa'Nabi in their quest to restore the happy community back to what it once was.

The Lego Movie 2 comes to the Luez Theatre for two weeks beginning February 8. Showtimes are 7:00 p.m. on Thursday-Saturday, with a 2:00 p.m. matinee on Sunday.

Silerton Mary Lynn Lambert 609-6455 Cousins of Ouida Scoggins, who lives in the Silerton area, were saddened to hear of her death. Several traveled to Bemis to attend visitation. She was 94 years old. She was the daughter of Mayola (Siler) and Floyd Scoggins. Mayola was the daughter of Tavy Siler who was the son of Jessie Siler, one of the original settlers of Silerton. Even though Mayola married and moved to Bemis, TN to rear her family, the family were regular visitors back to Silerton. Doris Scoggins, a sister to Ouida, lives in Nashville, TN. She reminisced about the good times she had as a child visiting relatives in Silerton. She, her siblings and mother would catch a train in Jackson and travel to Silerton. One of the more vivid memories she recalls as a child was coming to her grandparents' home for family reunions. She recalls many long picnic tables set up in the area near the family spring, where the milk and dairy products were kept. She recalls all the cakes and pies along with all the other dishes. All the food was homemade. Some of her fondest memories were of the children running around having an enjoyable time.

Jessie Siler, with his wife and young children, undertook a lengthy and tedious journey from Siler City, NC (old notes estimate approximately 6 months) to travel through the Smoky Mountains to arrive in West Tennessee. His descendants have that same spirit to set goals and come out victorious. Doris is one such descendant. She loved playing basketball in J B Young High School and was an outstanding ball player. After high school, she attended Nashville Business College where she continued her love for playing basketball. NBC had a wonderful team and they were invited to play in tournaments. Doris mentioned in 1955 the team traveled in cars to the western states to play in tournaments. Doris made the all-American team and flew to Rio De Janeiro in South America to play in a world tournament. Twelve to fifteen counties sent teams to participate. NBC beat a Russian team 51 to 49 to win the world championship. It was a gigantic achievement for a small-town West Tennessee girl. Doris stated that as a young woman, she couldn't believe the poverty they saw. She and others on the team pulled off their socks to give to the children. In 2015, Doris was inducted in the Madison County Hall of Fame. Doris truly inherited her great grandparent's traits and is a fitting example that tenacity and persistence pays off.

Happy Birthday to our good neighbor, Ginia Kelley Mullen, February 16. If you see her out and about, be sure to wish her a happy day!

A gentle reminder to all you men out there, in case you haven't been keeping an eye on the calendar. Valentine's Day is coming up very soon! I am directing this notice to the men, because much of the time we need to be reminded that a special day is approaching. Now guys, Valentine's Day is a very special and unique opportunity for us. This is a chance for you to really shine and impress your significant other. Your sweetie may tell you it doesn't matter what you get her, but trust me, guys, don't believe that for one minute- it DOES MATTER!! Now, a good start to her special day would be maybe a small gift or perhaps a nice card that you leave for her either by the bed, or somewhere she will see it first thing in the morning. Next you may want to treat her to a special breakfast that you have prepared. This will set the tone for the day and put her in a very good mood! If she works outside of the home, make sure you have something going to her workplace. Trust me, there's nothing worse than a woman sitting at work watching her co-workers receiving flowers and gifts from there men, and her receiving nothing. I would also like to remind you that this is not the time to go cheap on the Valentine gifts. Whether you realize it or not, every time you send flowers or other gifts to your wife, girlfriend, or other special lady, your gift is being compared to the gifts received from the other husbands, boyfriends, etc, so you must make sure that you out-do the other guys. Once you have dazzle her at work with flowers and gifts, be sure to have a reservation made somewhere special for a nice dinner. This is NOT the night for a pizza buffet, a fast-food joint, any eating establishment with a drive-through window or a place where the servers wear roller skates to deliver your food! Yes, if you take time to plan and do things right, it will generate huge brownie points and help make up for those stupid mistakes that we, as men, are going to make on down the road! So enjoy yourselves, and Happy Valentine's Day to you and yours!

Light of the World: Sermon on the Mount-Part 3 by Jeff Capshaw

The Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5-7) is embedded within the story of Matthew's Gospel. His account presents Jesus as a son of David (1:1) and the Son of God (27:54). Thus, Jesus is the fulfillment of the Messianic expectations of Ancient Israel. Matthew establishes Jesus' authority and credibility to set-forth explicit commands for those who claim to be his disciples. In turn, those commands (anchored in the Scriptures of his time) aim to change the thinking and behavior of his followers.

The first 16 verses of the sermon comprise something like the background to a story. Up to this point, he gives no explicit exhortations for disciples' thinking or behavior. Instead, we find the benefits for following his teachings (The Beatitudes vv. 3-10) and the images of light and salt as identity markers for disciples (vv. 13-16).

Last week, I suggested those images paint a picture for believers. He says not to be worthless like unsavory salt. But be bearers of light to a dark world by properly reflecting an accurate opinion of God the Father.

Certainly, Jesus intends to lays-out explicit ethical expectations, but he is also confronting a serious religious problem. The Jewish religion of Jesus' day had gone awry in its interpretation of Scripture. Consider Jesus' constant refrain; "you have heard that it has been said, but I say unto you . . ." (Matthew 5).

Additionally, Matthew 23:1-3 says, . . . the teachers of the law and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat. So you must be careful to do everything they tell you. But do not do what they do, for they do not practice what they preach.

Together, these concerns form the implied reasons for Jesus' first command; think right about Scripture, because Scripture alone is the sole and infallible rule of faith and practice. For Jesus and his disciples, that was the Old Testament. For us, it is both the Old and New Testaments (2 Timothy 3:16-17).

As Jesus said, not the smallest letter of Scripture nor the smallest part of a letter of Scripture will fail until all be fulfilled (5:18). This is a literary way of stressing the necessity of God's Word for all of faith and practice. Next week, we will take a closer look at this first of Jesus' commands in the Sermon on the Mount.

She was preceded in death by her brother, Thomas Sevegney.

Are You Prepared for a Natural Disaster?

The year ahead offers new opportunities and experiences. But as you make plans throughout 2019, be mindful of the things that can derail those plans – such as the natural disasters that affected so many families in 2018. Every area around the country is subject to natural disasters, whether they're wildfires, hurricanes or tornadoes. How can you prepare for them?

Here are a few suggestions:

Maintain adequate insurance. It's a good idea to review your homeowners insurance at least annually to ensure it's still providing the protection you need. And make sure you know exactly what your policy covers in terms of natural disasters. You'll also want to review your life and disability insurance regularly. And, of course, you'll want to stay current on your premiums for all your policies.

Keep a record of your possessions. The insurance claims process will be much easier if you take the time, before a natural disaster occurs, to photograph or videotape the contents of your home. You also might want to list the brands and serial numbers of appliances and electronics.

Know your passwords. It's important to have ready access to the passwords for your financial accounts. You may be able to memorize them, but, if not, keep them somewhere – perhaps in your smartphone – that you can access anywhere. It's always possible that a natural disaster will strike so quickly that you can't even grab your phone, so, to be extra cautious, you might want to share your passwords with a trusted family member or friend. (Even then, though, you may want to change your passwords every so often.)

Build an emergency fund. During or following a natural disaster, you may need ready access to cash to cover some of the essentials of daily living, such as food and shelter. Keeping a lot of cash in your home may not be such a great plan, especially if you have to evacuate quickly. Consequently, you might want to create an emergency fund containing three to six months' worth of living expenses, with the money kept in a low-risk, liquid and highly accessible account at a local bank or with your financial services provider.

Protect your documents. These days, many of your important financial materials, such as your investment statements, are available online, so they're likely safe from any disaster. But you may still have some items, such as checkbooks, birth certificates, passports, Social Security cards, insurance policies and estate planning documents (i.e., will, living trust, etc.) on paper. Even if some or all of these things could eventually be replaced, it would take time and effort. You're better off protecting them beforehand, possibly by keeping them in a safety deposit box at a local bank. Save your receipts. You'll want to save receipts for repairs and temporary lodging to submit to your insurance company. If you are not fully reimbursed for these expenses, they may be tax deductible, though you'll need to consult with your tax advisor to be certain. If you're fortunate, you'll never have to face a natural disaster that threatens your home and possessions. But it never hurts to be ready – just in case. ### Ames Plantation...Not Just for the Birds by Bill Stone

And it wasn't always the Ames Plantation. In fact the land base occupied by the present plantation includes land initially owned by over a dozen early planters. Production of cotton was the main business of these plantation owners. From the 1830's until the Civil War this cotton based economy thrived. Thousands of acres were cleared and planted. With the end of the war also came the end of the cotton plantation tradition. There was a shift to share cropping which continued through the rest of the century.

B12

The history of the plantation's main location began in 1826 with the arrival of the John Walker Jones family. They built a two story log cabin and established "Cedar Grove Plantation". Two decades later in 1847, the manor house was built. The family's new home was an ell-shaped, two story manor. Far more spacious and comfortable than the original log cabin, their new home was a material reflection of their success as cotton producers over the previous two decades.

It was not until a little over 50 years later, in 1901, the home was acquired by Hobart and Julia Ames. A wealthy industrialist, Ames was owner of a half dozen plants scattered mostly across the eastern portion of the United States. His company's main products were tool handles. He purchased the plantation as a retreat, a place to entertain friends and hunt quail.

Ames made significant changes to the original home including the addition of a wing to accommodate servants. Early on he added electricity and a kerosene furnace which heated water for a heating system. Since those early days little else has been changed.

Ames' original purchase was the home plus 400 acres of land. Over the years he acquired additional land until the final tally prior to his death reached 26,000 acres. Under his ownership the plantation operated as a hunting preserve, cattle operation, and cotton plantation. The Ames' visited about two months per year generally arriving in late December and departing in early March.. The day to day operation was managed by an overseer.

Initially focusing on cotton production, in 1913 Ames ventured into raising Angus cattle. This operation is ongoing and today is recognized as the fourth oldest registered herd in the United States. Its leading bloodline stock makes breeding age bulls and replacement females available to the public.

The first National Field Trial was run in 1896 near West Point Mississippi. Later trials were held south of Grand Junction Tennessee and finally found a permanent home at Ames Plantation in 1916. Each running since has been on 6,000 acres of "hallowed ground" set aside by Ames specifically for that purpose. He served many years as the President and a judge of the National Championship.

The annual National Field Trial may be the best, and to many, the only, known activity at Ames Plantation. In fact, it's only one of many other important and widely various projects ongoing there year round.

ly. His military service is truly heroic. His military commendations at the age of 19 are amazing," said Hardeman County Mayor Jimmy Sain.

Jeter was wounded during a firefight and received shrapnel to the neck and face from a bomb. Jeter refused medical attention until he got his unit evacuated from the area.

Upon returning home, Jeter served as a member of the Tennessee National Guard, was a Bolivar Firefighter for 27 years, was Hardeman County Sheriff for eight years.

Adoptable Animal of the Month

by Sara Vonderheide

Adam #19002 is a mixed breed, senior male. He is estimated to be about 12 years old and weighs about 40 pounds. This sweet old fella needs a place to live for his remaining years. He has so much love in those eyes. Sadly he is heartworm positive and has been put on slow-kill due to his estimated age. He is showing no symptoms and is a happy boy who loves to play with squeaky toys. If you are looking for a calm, loving companion dog, Adam is your guy. If you take this sweet boy home you will not have to deal with the energy or mischief of a puppy. If you are interested in meeting Adam, please contact (text is preferred) Charla Cooper at 731-
