From the Other Side of the Desk

October is Distracted Driving Awareness Month.

This is not a new thing. Distracted driving has existed since Henry Ford put a cupholder in the Model T and the first Dunkin' Donuts opened up a drive thru.

While we're not supposed to text or even hold our phone, there is plenty of acceptable distracted driving going on all over the place. All the time.

Billboards: If I'm reading a sign on the side of the street and up in the air, I can't really keep my eye on the road can I? These should be outlawed.

Bumper stickers: My favorite is "If you can read this, you're too close." Well, if I'm not supposed to text or read texts, why am I allowed to put a message on my back bumper? And my eyes are up here, by the way.

Drive thru food: There's some food that should be illegal to eat while you drive. Two words: Taco Bell. Unless you don't care if you wear your food, that is.

Primping: If I were a woman (or wore makeup) this would make my personal list. Hence, I have no comment.

Well, maybe just one. It seems to me that putting on eye-liner while the car is moving is really rather dangerous. For everyone.

I've heard of men (electric razor, I'm thinking) shaving while driving to work. Uh, ok. The ladies might want to avoid this one though.

And of course there are spouses, kids, speed limit and stop signs, GPS, waving at people, and sifting through the mail.

In other words, it isn't just my phone.

But then there's the radio: This is the best distraction, because it isn't even a distraction. All you have to do is listen to Real Country 96.7 FM. And you don't have to touch that dial. :) And the paper can wait until you get home.

The Truck That Stopped The Trial

A conclusion to testimony in the more-than-a-year long salary dispute case by the Hardeman County Sheriff's Department seemed in sight, but vehicle trouble for Chancellor Tony Childress eventually resulted in the case being continued until a later date. At press time, no new dates had been released.

The day was to begin with attorney Amber Shaw beginning her defense, but with Chancellor Childress stuck in Jackson, no arguments were heard on October 7.

Attorney Roy Herron, representing Hardeman County Sheriff John Doolen, had called Hardeman County Sheriff's Department Administrative Captain Brian Vandiver, Chief Deputy Greg Moore,

If You've Tried to Ignore This for 15 Months...

Following the passing of the 2019-2020 budget, Hardeman County Sheriff John Doolen sued for more support in July of 2019.

The issue was seemingly settled in October 2019 after then Hardeman County Attorney Chip Cary and Attorney Roy Herron came to an agreement. Cary presented it to the county commission in a special called meeting as the sheriff's department, who originally sought and sued for approximately $1.4 million dollars, settled for $102,000.

At the October 8, 2019 meeting, the vote went 13-1 in favor of ending the lawsuit with the settlement. While both sides claimed lack of adherence to the settlement terms, Attorney Amber Griffin Shaw filed a Motion to Set Aside the Consent Order on behalf of Sain on February 10, citing numerous problems with the consent order. Herron eventually gave up on the settlement, setting up the September and October 2020 trial dates.

expert witness Steve Overton, and Doolen prior to resting his case on October 6.

Vandiver, Moore, and Doolen were questioned as to the efficiency, needs, and requests of the department, while Overton's testimony was limited to his study on the salaries of employees of the sheriff's department.

Waiting for four days of trial to testify were eight persons held by Herron, including budget committee members Junior Jimmerson and chairman Jerry Watkins, commissioners Jackie Sain and Johnny Lanier, who are also on the budget committee; commissioners Justin Howell, Mark Gilliam, and mayor's office employees Carly Weems and Linda Ervin. None were called to testify prior to Herron resting his case.

Efforts to learn what make, model, and year of the truck proved unsuccessful.

Tales from the Yellow House by Lee McAlpin

Around this time of year at the Yellow House, spirits were running higher than normal, the reason being that the first bale (sometimes the only one) of cotton had been taken to the gin and the family had a “little extra” in the usually strained finance department. Mom would get the Sears and Roebuck catalog and prepare the annual fall ordering of our winter clothes. Even though my mind was set on some fancy jacket, pants or shirt, I had to settle for a couple of flannel shirts, a pair of overalls or jeans. We called these catalogs “wish books”, and in our case that is definitely what they were. Us kids would gather around Mom and that catalog like it was Santa Claus. At times, I’ve seen Mom while flipping the pages, hesitate on a page of fancy womens dresses for a moment. I knew she was wishing too. When

I think about those times, it reminds me of a popular Merle Haggard song titled, “Mammas Hungry Eyes”. Mom and Dad both did without, in order for us kids to have dire essentials that we needed. I remember Mom telling me that there had been times when her and Dad had not eaten a meal in order for us kids to have something to eat.

I stand amazed at the undying love and sacrifices of parents for their kids. Usually this time of the year, we would receive the Sears Christmas catalog. To us, this was the most beautiful book there was. It was chocked full of every kind of toy imaginable. We would sit for hours looking at this book, sometimes fussing over who would get it next. After about a week it’s pages were worn thin, as we studied it more than our school books. We knew that we would never get any of those toys for Christmas, but just looking at them, was somehow in our dreams, like having them.

I heard a person once say, “The dream of having everything you want is better than having everything you want”. I never did fully comprehend that statement, but he might have something there. I believe that it is good for everyone to dream as long as you take a line from Rudyard Kiplings 1875 poem If, which says, “If you can dream and not make dreams your master.”

The Call of Wisdom, Part 2

by Jeff Capshaw

This and last week's lessons are from Proverbs 8, a familiar chapter in the Old Testament regarding Wisdom. Here Wisdom is personified as a woman crying out to be heard universally by all.

It opens with "does not Wisdom call? Does not understanding raise her voice"? The writer proceeds to elaborate on the nature and contents of Wisdom's call. He wants readers to hear Lady Wisdom's exposition of the need, value, and benefits of getting Wisdom. Last week's column covered the first 13 verses. This week's lesson takes in the balance of the chapter.

There is a half-dozen or so larger themes on Wisdom in verses 14-36. The first one pertains to political leaders and justice. "By me kings reign, and rulers decree what is just; by me princes rule, and nobles, all who govern justly" (vv. 15-16, 20). Thus, without Wisdom, there can be no objective justice for people. Instead, justice devolves into whatever a particular interest group or leader decides it to be.

The next theme pertains to a familiar refrain in Proverbs: Wisdom's value. "Riches and honor are with me, enduring wealth and righteousness. My fruit is better than gold, even fine gold, and my yield than choice silver" (vv. 18-19, 21). Again, Wisdom is juxtaposed to material wealth and is considered to be of more and lasting value.

The third and most voluminous theme in this chapter is the age or near eternity of Wisdom. According to the writer, "the LORD possessed me at the beginning of his work, the first of his acts of old. Ages ago I was set up, at the first, before the beginning of the earth" (vv. 22-23). Thus, Wisdom isn't a recent innovation; it has been around from eternity past because Wisdom is an early work of the Creator. Verses 24-31 in a highly poetic style go on to emphasize Wisdom's near co-existence with the eternal God himself.

The final part of the poem is the rhetorical payoff. It is the so-what of all the preceding verses. He writes, "and now, O sons, listen to me: blessed are those who keep my ways. Hear instruction and be wise, and do not neglect it. Blessed is the one who listens to me, watching daily at my gates, waiting beside my doors. For whoever finds me finds life and obtains favor from the LORD, but he who fails to find me injures himself; all who hate me love death" (vv. 32-36).

Therefore, if personal blessings are desired, then don't neglect understanding what Wisdom looks like, and work to acquire. If one desires a better quality of life, then consider the value of Wisdom. Material things can only do so much. True happiness happens inside a person, not because of the eternal.

Finally, if long life and freedom from self-harm are desirable, then the odds of achieving those are increased by listening to, understanding, loving, acquiring, and acting on godly Wisdom.

Begin by David Coy

Whatever the circumstances we may come to a position in our life when we are overwhelmed. We might feel like we are at a crossroads in what to do and how to move forward. We may also find ourselves asking, if only I had or if only this were different or some other if only question. I was reading the book, You're Born An Original Don't Die A Copy by John L. Mason recently that made some very good points and one that I would like to expand upon is, Begin where you are and with what you have. I am paraphrasing of course, but what does it mean? Here is my opinion. When we lose someone or something of high esteem we do often feel overwhelmed. We may ask ourselves what now? How do I move forward? Realize, many people have lost their livelihood because of anarchist violence in the streets of our sister cities. On top of this some have probably lost loved ones as well. All this and we are worried about our elderly loved ones and those with co-morbidity issues in relation to the virus. So we can see many of our fellow countryman have a great deal to work through.

Working with what you have and where you are take one step forward and then another after that keeping your mental affect positive that with perseverance you will emerge and rise above your current tribulations and heartache. The big question is what will that other side look like? What will we look like on the other side. We do not exactly know that do we. We know we are and will be different, but that is ok. There is one common denominator about feeling like you have lost everything, as in a line spoken in a story, when you lose everything it is a perfect place to begin again. With support surrounding you / us, potential abunds! Begin, build again, build anew! This is Sunrise Aftercare, sunrise@sfdcures.com

Rustic Cabbage Soup

Ingredients

- 1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
- 1 pinch salt
- 1/2-pound potatoes (skin on, cut 1/4-inch pieces)
- 4 cloves garlic (chopped)
- 1/2 yellow onion (large, thinly sliced)
- 5 cups stock (see head notes)
- 1 1/2 cups white beans (precooked or canned, drained & rinsed well)
- 1/2 cabbage (medium, cored and sliced into 1/4-inch ribbons)
- Extra virgin olive oil (more good-quality, for drizzling)
- 1/2 cup parmesan cheese (freshly grated)

Directions

Warm the olive oil in a large thick-bottomed pot over medium-high heat. Stir in the salt and potatoes. Cover and cook until they are a bit tender and starting to brown a bit, about 5 minutes - it's okay to uncover to stir a couple times.

Stir in the garlic and onion and cook for another minute or two. Add the stock and the beans and bring the pot to a simmer. Stir in the cabbage and cook for a couple more minutes, until the cabbage softens up a bit. Now adjust the seasoning - getting the seasoning right is important or your soup will taste flat and uninteresting. Taste and add more salt if needed, the amount of salt you will need to add will depend on how salty your stock is.

Serve drizzled with a bit of olive oil and a generous dusting of cheese.

You can buy all the ingredients in this recipe at Maxwell's Big Star, 200 North Main Street, Bolivar

Bolivar Wins Middle School Softball

The Bolivar Middle School Softball rode a hot pitcher and won the Hardeman County Middle School tournament in Bolivar on October 3.

Bolivar trailed Middleton 5-1 in the second inning of the final game and faced a bases loaded situation when Coach Natalie Porterfield brought in Isabella Lax, who got a inning ending groundout.

Bolivar then scored eight runs in the bottom half of the second to lead 9-5, while Lax struck out three over the next two innings. Bolivar added three more in the fourth inning before Audrey Wells came on to pitch a scoreless final inning to preserve the win. Wells had three hits and three RBI's in the game as well.

Bolivar reached the final with an opening game 9-2 win over Toone. Lax pitched all four innings, striking out nine and walking five in the win. Allyson Watkins led the offense for Bolivar, going 2 for 2 with three RBI's and a walk.

Middleton's path to the final was an 18-3 win over Hornsby. Brittan Dawkins pitched a complete game for the win.

Bolivar and Middleton had split their regular season games.

TWRA Offering Hunting Classes

Tennessee Wildlife Federation, one of the largest and oldest nonprofits dedicated to conserving our state's wildlife and natural resources, invites Tennessee families to learn how to hunt deer. Six experiences have been announced for October.

First-time or novice deer hunters—or those interested in future experiences around turkey, dove, or fish—can sign up at tnwf.org/interest.

The Federation's Hunting and Fishing Academy program provides engaging, hands-on instruction in the art of being an outdoorsman through multi-day, immersive experiences.

For hunters, this includes practical sessions about reading the land and understanding the species to pick the best location, how to create a blind, what to consider to ensure ethical harvesting, safely field dressing the harvest, and more.

Participants are mentored by volunteer Hunt Masters, who are skilled, lifelong hunters and anglers.

Two dates and locations are near Hardeman County: October 30, 5:30 p.m. - November 1, 12 p.m. and on October 31, 10:00 a.m. - November 12 p.m.

Near Jonesborough, Tenn. on Oct. 30, 5:30 p.m. - Nov. 1, 12 p.m.

"If you're interested in learning to hunt or fish but don't know a sportsman, getting started can be hard," said John Worthen, director of programs for the Federation. "Hunting and Fishing Academy provides beginner outdoorsmen and women experienced mentors who serve as a resource long after their Academy experience."

In addition to gaining proficiency in hunting and fishing, participants will have opportunities to learn core outdoor recreation skills such as campsite selection and set up, orienteering with a compass, and the principles of "leave no trace" outdoorsmanship.

Participants will leave the experience with all of the basic skills and knowledge needed to go again on their own.

Parents and guardians aren't just present during these excursions. They are participants, learning and doing right alongside their child so they are prepared to lead your family into the great outdoors.

The cost to attend a Hunting and Fishing Academy experience depends on the duration and covers all of the equipment you will need, meals, and lodging. Scholarships are available for participants who wish to attend an Academy experience but are unable to pay the full amount.

Groups Working to Feed the Hungry

Two area groups are working to provide food for those either unable to buy or at risk to go out and purchase needed supplies.

University of Tennessee Extension's Hardeman Healthy Outreach has again secured family food boxes for distribution at First Baptist Church in Middleton. This distribution is open to all residents of Hardeman County. Food boxes will include fresh fruits and vegetables, dairy products, and meat products. Five hundred (500) boxes will be available each day.

As part of the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program, the United States Department of Agriculture is again purchasing and distributing agricultural products to those in need through a network of regional distributors who package products into family-sized boxes. These foods were purchased through the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service and have kept farmers and ranchers in business despite closure of restaurants and disruption to other routine dining venues.

The distributions will be held Tuesday, October 13 and Thursday, October 15 beginning at 9 a.m. Participants are asked to stay in their vehicles upon arrival and not to begin lining up until 8 a.m. No pre-registration is required. There is a three-box limit per vehicle.

"First Baptist Church in Middleton was a willing partner in our first distribution. We chose to work with them again because that area of the county is not served by a larger food pantry or distribution opportunity," said Stephanie Middleton, UT Extension program assistant, who organized the distribution.

Organizations, such as churches, may request a larger number of boxes that they are welcome to distribute to those unable to drive to the location. In this situation, boxes may be reserved by calling Stephanie Middleton at 731-658-2421 or 910-770-5248 before the distribution date.

This project is funded by the CDC's High Obesity Program (HOP) through The University of Tennessee Extension to improve access to food and physical activity opportunities throughout Hardeman County. For more information, go to @BeMoreHardeman on Facebook.

Caregivers Must Also Care (Financially) for Themselves

If you're a caregiver, possibly for a loved one dealing with an illness such as Alzheimer's disease, you're probably already facing some significant emotional and physical challenges – so you don't need any financial ones as well. Yet, they are difficult to avoid. What steps can you take to deal with them?

First of all, you may be interested in knowing the scale of the problem. Consider these numbers from the Alzheimer's Association: About 5.8 million Americans ages 65 and older are living with Alzheimer's disease, and in 2019, caregivers of individuals with Alzheimer's or other dementias contributed more than 18 billion hours of unpaid care – worth about $244 billion in services. Furthermore, about two-thirds of caregivers are women, and one-third of dementia caregivers are daughters.

But whatever your gender or relationship to the individuals for whom you're providing care, you can take some steps to protect your own financial future. Here are a few suggestions:

Evaluate your employment options. If you have to take time away from work – or even leave employment altogether – to be a caregiver, you will lose not only income but also the opportunity to contribute to an IRA and a 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan. But you may have some options, such as working remotely, or at least working part time. Either arrangement can give you flexibility in juggling your employment with your caregiving responsibilities.

Explore payment possibilities for caregiving. Depending on your circumstances, and those of the loved ones for whom you're providing care, you might be able to work out an arrangement in which you can get paid something for your services. And as long as you are earning income, you can contribute to an IRA to keep building resources for your own retirement.

Protect your financial interests – and those of your loved ones. You may well want to discuss legal matters with the individual for whom you are a caregiver before Alzheimer's robs them of the ability to think clearly. It may be beneficial to work with a legal professional to establish a financial power of attorney – a document that names someone to make financial decisions and pay bills when the person with Alzheimer's no longer can. And whether you or someone else has financial power of attorney, the very existence of this document may help you avoid getting your personal finances entangled with those of the individual for whom you're caring.

Keep making the right financial moves. As long as you're successful at keeping your own finances separate from those of your loved one, you may be able to continue making the financial moves that can help you make progress toward your own goals. For example, avoid taking on more debts than you can handle. Also, try to maintain an emergency fund containing three to six months' worth of living expenses, with the money kept in a liquid account. Of course, these tasks will be much easier if you can maintain some type of employment or get paid for your caregiving services.

There's nothing easy about being a caregiver. But by making the right moves, you may be able, at the least, to reduce your potential financial burden and brighten your outlook.

The Editor's Inbox...Letters to the Editor

(OPEN LETTER TO MY FRIENDS IN WEST TENNESSEE)

October 5, 2020

Dear Friends,

Rarely do I get publicly involved in politics these days. I've been there and done that. Nowadays it is so divisive, and feelings tend to get hurt too quickly. However, there is a fellow running for State Senate this year that I am honored to support and pray is successful. His name is Page Walley, and I've known Page and his family for nearly half a century. Born and raised in Somerville, my brother and I still own the family farm in north Fayette County on Yum Yum Road. My brother and Page went to school together. His family lived in Fayette County, and I witnessed Page grow from a young boy into a man of great integrity.

He played football in college and became a minister. He also became a Doctor of Psychology and has been helping families and those in need his entire career. In 1990, Page was elected to the State House and served for 10 years. As Tennessee Attorney General, I was honored to administer the oath of office when Page became Tennessee's Commissioner of Children's Services. I worked daily with Commissioner Walley and represented his department as chief legal counsel. Page went on to serve Governor Bob Riley in Alabama as commissioner as well; he earned the respect of his colleagues.

Page Walley understands West Tennessee and the 26th Senatorial District. He worked hard and defeated a good man in the Republican primary because of his work ethic. I know Page's heart, and I know what drives him each day. He truly wants to represent folks who can't help themselves. It's nothing new to him, because he's been doing that all of his life. He has a history of protecting our West Tennessee values and will work tirelessly to insure that our more rural counties will not be drawn into urban senate districts.

Page is a consummate conservative and fundamentally believes in the strict interpretation of both our state and federal constitutions. He says what he means, and means what he says. We are at a critical time in country, and there is no room for on-the-job training. Without a doubt Page Walley will always keep one thing in mind, and that is to put West Tennessee first. Page is a family man of integrity, a lawmaker with vision, and a friend who will never let us down. That's the Page Walley I know and respect.

I hope you will join me in supporting, voting and praying for our next State Senator, Page Walley.

Respectfully,

Paul G. Summers, Former Attorney General Tennessee

To the Editor:

Republican politicians across the nation are showing naked, shameless, in-your-face hypocrisy as they flip flop on their excuses for stonewalling President Obama's nominee to fill an open Supreme Court seat left vacant in February 2016, long before Election Day. At the time, GOP Senators issued pious claims like Mitch McConnell's "The American people should have a voice in the selection of their next Supreme Court Justice."

The excuses they now use to justify their sudden need to ignore the Voice of the People are staggeringly weak. They claim that Democrats would fill the seat, an accusation that has been mocked as "hypothetical hypocrisy." Republicans also claim it is business as usual for a Senate to leave a Supreme Court seat open if the presidency and the senate majority are held by different parties. The historical record says otherwise. Democratic President Johnson left open a seat in an election year and a Democratic Senate confirmed Justice Kennedy, nominated by a Republican president, in an election year.

These claims also fly in the face of common sense, as illustrated by McConnell's recent self-contradictory statement "We have an obligation under the Constitution should we choose to take advantage of it." Sorry, Senator McConnell, but an obligation is not a choice, it's the opposite of a choice.

This gets to the heart of the towering hypocrisy Republicans are showing. They could have said when they blocked Obama's nominee what they're saying now. They could have said "we're leaving a seat on the Supreme Court vacant for a year, hobbling its operation, because we see a potential partisan political advantage in doing so." They didn't say that because they knew how voters would have reacted to the notion that Constitutional duties are really choices that can be blown off when there is insufficient political advantage.

Chair, Loudon County Democratic Party
